SIX UNION PICKETS KILLED AND 14 WOUNDED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

EUROPEAN ATTACK ON DOLLAR CAMOUFLAGING HER OWN MONETARY TROUBLES DISTURBING UNREST RUMOURS

GREAT BRITAIN IS REPORTED TO BE PURSUING A POLICY OF CREEPING DEPRECIATION OF STERLING. SINCE THE INITIAL ADVANTAGES ACCRUING FROM THE GOLD STANDARD ARE NOW EXHAUSTED, AND SHE IS STRIVING HER UTMOST TO PREVENT THE RAPID FLIGHT OF FOREIGN CAPITAL FROM LONDON, STATES A SPECIAL WASHINGTON WIRE TO MESSRS. S. E. LEVY & CO.

If this is unsuccessful, both foreigners and the English themselves are likely to export capital from England. There are indications that the price of gold is moving towards 150 shillings or more, which will almost certainly result in a 50 cent dollar. The London on New York cross-rate, however, is unlikely to rise above £-U.S.$5.50 due to pressure from the British-Dominions.

PORTSMOUTH TO KARACHI IN 48 HOURS

R.A.F. Flyers To Refuel In Mid Air
SIR ALAN COBHAM'S NEW VENTURE

London, To-day. A flight from Portsmouth to Karachi in 48 hours, refuelling in mid-air, is projected on September 21 by Sir Alan Cobham and Squadron-Leader Helmore, one of the leading technical experts of the R. A. F., according to the "Daily Mail."

The flight is the outcome of two years' experimental work in the possibilities of refuelling commercial aircraft on long trans-continental journeys.

The airman will use an ordinary six-seater commercial monoplane, with a maximum speed of 165 m.p.h., which will be supplied with an extra hundred gallons of petrol from a tanker plane while (Continued on Page 9.)

INCREASED TAXES IN U.S.

Washington, To-day. Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, said yesterday that the Administration had made no decision as to whether they would seek an increase in taxes at the next Congress, to offset the mounting expenditure. United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

The necessity of the United States to export gold against her silver purchases seems doubtful in view of favourable trading balance. The current European attack on the dollar appears to be nothing more than an attempt to camouflage Europe's own currency troubles.

German internal dissension is growing and the Reich Leader and Chancellor, Herr Adolf Hitler, is attempting to stimulate external diversions. European Continental officials are, deeply pessimistic regarding the Russo-Japanese situation. The British Government is profoundly disturbed over the internal labour unrest.

Silver Discussion Foreseen

SECRECY ANTICIPATED

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL. (By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received September 7, 8.44 a.m.)

Washington, To-day. Due to the impending return of Professor Rogers, who has been studying the silver problem in the Orient on behalf of the United States Treasury, American silver advocates believe it likely that the United States will resume conversations with Great Britain, France, China and other nations shortly to effect prompt and greater use of silver as money, which, it is believed, will aid the American programme.

President Roosevelt is reported to be anxious for new international agreements for increasing the use of silver. Undoubtedly, any discussions would be very secret, due to the fact that America is now the world's greatest purchaser of silver, and does not want to tip her hand. United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

"BANKING FIELD OVER-CROWDED"

German Check On Private Banks

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL. (By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received September 7, 9.45 a.m.)

Berlin, To-day. The Reich Minister of Economic Affairs, Dr. Kurt Schmitt, has prohibited the establishment of new banks and other credit institutions in Germany until 1937 on the grounds that "the field is already overcrowded."

Observers believe that the move is intended to checkmate the establishment of new private banks by financiers who are at present withdrawing from larger banks due to dissatisfaction with the present financial measures. United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

Dispossess notices given to the present tenants of the former imperial palace (above) by the Government is interpreted as being a preparation for the restoration of the monarchy, with Archduke Otto as Emperor. Archduke Otto is shown wearing the historic crown of the Holy Roman Empire.

The Hague, To-day. By order of the Dutch Premier, Dr. H. Colijn, the Government of the Dutch East Indies has appointed a committee to prepare the way for the amalgamation of the Billiton Mining Company, of The Hague, and the Government's Banka Tin Works.

The proposal is regarded of great importance for the world tin position. —Reuter.

3 KILLED AS BRITISH TRAINS ARE WRECKED

OVER 40 REPORTED INJURED

HARROWING SCENES

London, To-day. An engine-driver, a fireman and a passenger were killed and over 40 people were injured in collision between two London, Midland and Scottish Railway trains at Edlington Junction, two miles from St. Enoch, yesterday.

Both trains were completely wrecked, most of the coaches being telescoped and smashed to smithereens.

Ambulances and doctors were rushed to the spot, and the victims were extricated from the debris only with the greatest difficulty. —Reuter.

TYPHOON NORTH OF FORMOSA

The typhoon appears to be stationary to the immediate north of Formosa, and will probably recurve to the north-eastward, according to the report issued by the Royal Observatory this morning.

All local danger from this typhoon now appears to be past.

A similar warning was issued by the Manila Observatory, through the American Consul-General at 9.20 a.m. to-day.

SKIRMISH WITH NON-STRIKERS

PICKETS FLEE IN PANIC LEAVING DEAD

MILL CLOSED AFTER INCIDENT AND 600 WORKERS JOBLESS

LOYALTY'S REWARD

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL. (By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received September 7, 8.44 a.m.)

Washington, To-day. DESPITE the rapidly rising death roll resulting from clashes in the United States textile industry strike, the Chairman of the Strike Committee of the United Textile Workers Union, who a few days ago pledged that no violence would occur, has given no sign of abandoning the dispute.

The most serious clash, so far, took place at Hoesepath, South Carolina, yesterday, when six Union pickets were killed and 14 wounded in a savage battle with non-strikers at the mill of the Chiquola Manufacturing Company. The loyal workers armed themselves to resist the strike pickets, and after a bitter struggle, in which bludgeons and stones were freely used, the pickets withdrew in panic, leaving their dead and wounded comrades behind.

THE MILL WAS CLOSED DOWN AFTER THE INCIDENT, THROWING 600 WORKERS OUT OF EMPLOYMENT. THE MAJORITY OF THESE WERE NOT IN FAVOUR OF THE STRIKE.

CANTON SWELTERS

Residents Flock To Sleep In Parks

BATHING BEACHES CROWDED

(From Our Own Correspondent) Canton, To-day. Last night was the hottest so far experienced this summer. The temperature was 91 degrees Fahrenheit. The streets and parks were full of people until the small hours of this morning.

All public parks were open all night for the benefit of the public, and some slept on the benches there instead of going home. Others sought relief at the bathing beaches in the western outskirts and at Tungshan. The crowd there late last night was unusually large.

All buses were running right up to midnight and did good business. Rickshaws and hired motor cars also profited.

BRUTAL MURDER AT TSUN WAN

Villager's Throat Cut And Daughter Wounded

WIFE TOO DISTRAUGHT TO MAKE STATEMENT

Tsui Tak-choi, an employee of the Shing Mun Dam, was brutally murdered between midnight and 1 a.m. to-day at his home at Tsun Wan, New Territories, and property, provisionally estimated at $1,000, was stolen. Deceased's daughter Tsui Yuk-yip, was seriously injured, and his wife almost frightened out of her wits.

Police reports to hand are brief, but it appears that some person or persons entered the house with the intention to rob, murdered the man, his neck being cut by a knife, and wounded the girl. The murder (Continued on Page 9)

U.S. BANK LOAN TO INDUSTRY

CHINA OR TURKEY

RE-ELECTION TO COUNCIL OF THE LEAGUE

Powerful Support For Rival Candidature

INTRIGUING PROBLEM

GENEVA, TO-DAY. THE QUESTION OF THE RE-ELECTION OF CHINA TO THE COUNCIL OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS SERIOUSLY CONCERNING THE FRIENDS OF CHINA, WHO WOULD LIKE TO SEE HER REMAIN ON THE COUNCIL, IN VIEW OF THE CANDIDATURE OF TURKEY, WHICH IS POWERFULLY SUPPORTED.

In the event of a straight Sino-Turkish fight, there is little doubt that China would easily get the majority of votes, but before China can put forward her candidature, she must obtain a two-thirds majority vote in the Assembly, agreeing to her re-eligibility, and it should not be very difficult for the Turkish opposition to secure one-third of the votes against China.

If China secures a vote of re-eligibility, she will certainly also get a majority of votes for her re-election, but if China is eliminated, Turkey's chances of election will become very real. —Reuter.

B.B.C. STATION

Long-Wave Transmitter At Wychbold

TO REPLACE DAVENTRY

London, To-day. The British Broadcasting Corporation's transmitting station at Wychbold, near Droitwich, was brought into commission yesterday. Its long-wave transmitter, which will replace Daventry 5XX, is designed for a power of 150 kilowatts, and its aerial is at least three times that of any station previously built by the B. B. C.

The aerial is supported on masts 700 feet high, which are the highest built by the B. B. C. (Continued on Page 12)

PARCELS FOR THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

The Post Office of the Union of South Africa complains that a number of parcels are reaching that country with their contents inadequately described on the Customs Declarations, and draws attention to the necessity for giving a full description of the contents if delay in delivery is to be avoided.

It adds that the enclosure in a parcel of a copy of the relative invoice would be of great assistance.

Woollen Fabric Novelties

Quilted Effects To The Fore

ELASTIC INTRODUCED

Although the evolution of the new autumn modes has taken place in Paris in the usual atmosphere of secrecy, interesting details of autumn fabric novelties are now forthcoming.

Quilting will be featured according to a fashion expert. There will be elastic in new woollen weaves which bring quilted effects to the fore. A considerable amount of metal will be introduced in new fabrics, and "halcyon" weaves include one novelty showing half of the hard skunk variety glistening over the dull black surface of a new broadcloth.

Elastic is introduced in plain woollens, interwoven with hair and metal threads, or merely hair and wool. Other woollens are in weaves of special quilted design.

GOLD AND SILVER SANDALS RETURN

Evening Gowns To Match

Gold and silver kid sandals are being seen again here at night. The vogue for frocks of crepe or lame woven with gold or silver thread brought them back in the mode.

They are favourite footwear with fine lace or tulle evening frocks embroidered in metal threads, and many women also wear them with plain crepe frocks.

How To Clean Cork

Marks on the cork seats of bathroom chairs and stools do not always yield to treatment with soap and water. They should be rubbed with fine sandpaper, brushed with a clean dry brush, and then washed in the usual way. Cork table-mats may be cleaned by the same process, but care must be taken to hold them flat on a firm surface, for they easily crack if they are bent. The sandpaper should be as fine as possible, and it may be applied most effectively if it is folded round a small nail-brush or some kind of small soft pad.

THE TUNIC

The tunic, either as a definite silhouette or as a suggestion, is used in evening styles as well as in daytime ones.

Summer Fatigue.

Keep your digestive organs in good working order and your liver active, and you will then be fortified against the tiring effect of long summer days, for it is when your liver is sluggish that you feel the heat most and quickly get tired and worn out.

Pinkettes, the tiny laxative pills, gently assist nature to maintain regularity, thereby ensuring the maximum strength and energy for you during the hot season. Pinkettes are obtainable at all chemists.

OLD LINEN

Sometimes embroidery which has been on hand for a long time is inclined to develop a yellow tinge. This is frequently the case also with table and bed linen which has been in store. Ordinary washing will not restore the original whiteness of the articles, and it will be found that buttermilk is the best medium for his purpose. The articles should be soaked in the buttermilk for about twenty-four hours in the case of badly discoloured articles. Slightly affected linen will soon become perfectly white. After treatment, wash the articles in the usual way.

NATURAL FLOWERS

Natural flowers are much worn in the hair this summer—gardenias, petunias, orchids and camellias, in particular.

BRIDGE NOTES

BIDDING A SLAM

by Ely Culbertson.

A correspondent remarked in a recent letter that almost any dub
without a license can keep the car
out of the gutter up to four—in other words, that so widespread is the knowledge of the correct principles of bidding that generally even dub Contract players can be trusted to bid their sure games.

He added that the Four-Five No-trump Convention provides a paved and lighted road to Slams, and even a dub need not err in reaching the correct Slam contract or in stopping short of a Grand Slam
when only a Small Slam can be made.

In spite of the comparative simplicity of modern Slam bidding,
on the following hand, played in a recent Duplicate game, only two of the ten pairs reached the unbeatable Grand Slam through the use of this convention. One of the pairs to achieve this result was composed of Mrs. George U. Harris and Mrs. Lewis Osborn. Mrs. Osborn held the North hand and Mrs. Harris the South hand.

PRETTY KOWLOON WEDDING

Mr. Thomas Pile Marreid
At St. Andrew's

BRIDE ARRIVES FROM SCOTLAND

The wedding took place at St.
Andrew's Church, Kowloon yesterday of Mr. Thomas Madison Pile, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Pile of Hong Kong, to Miss Jean Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Nicol of Greenock, Scotland. The Rev. J. R. Higgs officiated.

The bride, who arrived from Home on Wednesday by the P. & O.
liner Rawalpindi, entered the church on the arm of Mr. A. C.
Tinson, the bridegroom's brother-in-law. She looked charming in her wedding gown of white angel
skin lace over pink crepe-de-chine, trimmed with seed pearls. Her long silk veil was set off with pink and white orange blossoms. White gladioli, white heather and asparagus fern made up the bridal bouquet
which was tied with a ribbon of the Gordon tartan.

Little June Tinson, the bridegroom's niece, acted as bridesmaid
and wore a dainty sage-blue organ-
die dress over a pale pink satin slip.
The dress was trimmed with pink velvet flowers. She carried a posy of white heather which had been specially brought out from Greenock by the bride.

Masters James and John Tinson looked smart as pages dressed as sailors of H.M. Navy.

Mrs. A. C. Tinson, Matron of Honour, wore a delightful white flowered organdie gown set off
with a white picture hat, white kid shoes and organdie gloves. She carried a bouquet of tangerine
tinted gladioli.

The duties of best man were undertaken by Mr. Christopher Stanley Pile, the bridegroom's brother.

After the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at the China
Light and Power Club, King's Park.
Mrs. Tinson received the friends of the newly married couple, who gathered to toast to their future happiness. On leaving the reception for the honeymoon, which is to be spent at Repulse Bay, Mrs. Pile wore a blue flowered georgette
dress with frilled sleeves, turned back over on the shoulders. The ensemble was completed with a navy blue Bangkok straw hat trimmed with pink flowers.

With the clutch of the general strike on business in San Francisco apparently slipping following the arrival of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, left, N.R.A. administrator, on the scene, and the repeated attacks of the police on the headquarters of radical elements among the strikers, business houses, closed since the start of the widespread walkout, began to reopen. Street cars, top, also resumed service. Below, one of the wrecked Communist headquarters after it had been raided by police, who arrested persons in the places.

SHANGHAI LEAD 9 TO 8

NO UPSETS LIKELY

I. R. C. EXPECTED TO WIN TITLE

ONLY FIVE MATCHES

Only five matches appear on the card for decision this week, two in the Senior Division and three in the Junior, the results of which are not likely to affect the present league positions.

Both the Kowloon Cricket Club and Club de Recreio, who receive the Kowloon Docks Recreation Club and Craigengower "B" respectively, should record home wins.

The Indian Recreation Club have little to fear in their home match against the Kowloon Cricket Club, and should make sure of the championship as the result. The Kowloon Bowling Green Club should account for the Civil Service juniors, and the Yacht Club should take the points from the Club de Recreio.

PLAYERS UPSET BY NEW POSITIONS

VICTORS RECORD WINS ON ALL RINKS

ELLIOT-HEYWOOD WASTED AT NO. 1

(By SHORT HEAD)

AT THE CLUB DE RECREIO ON SATURDAY THE HOME TEAM DEFEATED THE KOWLOON CRICKET CLUB BY 29 SHOTS IN A MATCH THAT WAS MUCH MORE EVENLY CONTESTED THAN THE SCORE WOULD SUGGEST.

In the first place the Cricket Club fielded fours that had not usually played together as rinks. On top of this, C. E. Elliot-Heywood, who is usually so constructive at No. 3, was playing No. 1. His drawing to the jack was faultless, but the remaining numbers were so unplayed that most of his good work was wasted.

HIS ABSENCE FROM A. E. SILKSTONE'S RINK WAS KEENLY FELT, FOR WITH L. J. SILVA AND G. MARQUES PLAYING WELL TOGETHER, IT WAS MORE THAN SILKSTONE COULD DO TO HOLD THEM. ALTHOUGH HIS RINK WAS HEAVILY DEFEATED, SILKSTONE ACTUALLY BOWLED BETTER THAN EITHER R. P. PHILLIPS OR J. FRASER.

CIVIL SERVICE SURPRISED ON HOME GREENS

J. C. CHALMERS BRILLIANT

TAIKOO'S UNEXPECTED WIN

Having in mind the fact that only the previous week the Civil Service had defeated the Police by 33 shots on the latter's greens, and that they are usually deadly at home, I may be forgiven for having presented myself at the Valley last Saturday with the fixed idea that it was not so much a question as to whether the Civil Service would win, but by how many shots they would win.

Taikoo have some good away wins to their credit, notable instances being their triumphs over the Police and Craigengower "B", but they are not consistent, constant rink changes being against them, but I did not consider them strong enough to defeat the Civil Service.

It was a considerable surprise, therefore, to see the home team getting the worst of the duel. The Civil Service lost on two rinks. F. J. Jones, rink (E. W. Simmonds, A. O. Brown and C. Strange), being the only home skip to record a win.

R. C. Wallace's rink (W. Brown, C. Summers, G. H. Stewart) who were in opposition to L. Hollidge's four (T. Armstrong, L. R. Whant, A. W. Grimmit), held the lead throughout the game, eventually winning by a single shot, the Civil Service four pulling up well on the last two heads, on which they scored five shots.

It was J. C. Chalmers' rink (W. Cunningham, D. B. Bone and D. Munro) who caused the damage, defeating J. W. Deakin's rink by 18 shots. The Talkoo skip himself was in great form, being by far the outstanding bowler on the greens, and to his individual efforts can be attributed Talkoo's success.

CARE OF WOODS IN HOT WEATHER

Useful Advice On How To Preserve Them

It has been the experience of many players to find in exceptionally warm weather that their bowls, due to neglect in the proper care of the woods to meet the conditions, have lost some of their weight, and are not drawing with their accustomed accuracy. Neglect may also give rise to the discs becoming dislodged from the bowls, as has been the unfortunate experience of more than one of the players engaged this season. Bowlers would therefore be well

J. Fraser and C. C. Silva's rinks were fairly evenly matched, and had C. J. Tacchi been playing in his usual position, the visiting rink would have come out on top. Fraser himself bowled well, and was largely responsible for keeping the margin of defeat to slow. This was exemplified on a head in which Silva, with his last wood, drew to the jack to give his rink a lay of four. Not only did he draw, but he had sufficient weight to push it through to the ditch.

With just the correct green and weight Fraser bowled his last wood and brought it to rest on the edge of the ditch and took the shot for the Cricket Club.

RECREIO'S EARLY LEAD On the middle rink the Recreio built up a lead from the commencement, but they had to fight for every shot they scored. Then came a period when luck turned against the Cricket Club, and on two heads the Recreio added 9 points.

Marques used both his woods to advantage, leaving E. C. Fincher to bowl against a lay of four. Fincher drew well and placed his wood for second shot. "Take this wood out and we shall lie four" cried Marques to Silva.

With a clever draw to Fincher's wood, Silva not only took it out but added another shot and blocked the way for Silkstone. That head enabled Recreio to chalk up 5.

On the next head it looked as if the Cricket Club might redeem a few shots, for they were lying four, with Silva and Silkstone each to bowl their last woods. Silva, however, took the jack to his back woods and converted the lay against him into one of four in his favour. This more or less upset the Cricket Club rink, but they rallied again and from that time on held their opponents fairly well.

TWO BURNT HEADS The 18th head was remarkable on this green, producing two "burnt heads". On the first occasion Silkstone cut the jack off the green in attempting to trail it to some back woods, and on the second occasion Silva was responsible for driving it off.

PLAYERS UPSET BY

On the 11th head on the 3rd, green Elliot-Haywood placed both of his woods to count. Phillips drew well to increase the lead to 3. C. H. Basto's only hope was to cannon off a wood to reduce the lead, but, luckily for the Cricket Club, he took the wood on the wrong side and cut it in to increase his opponents lay to 4.

On a later head, however, the Cricket Club were lying 3 when Basto trailed the jack to convert the lay into one of 4 in Recreio's favour.

Phillips failed with his first shot; and, although he might have drawn for a further shot, Basto, noting that the Cricket Club's woods lay in the rear, used his last wood as a saviour behind the jack. The presence of that wood altered

MACAO RACES
OPEN FIELDS PROMISE
GOOD DAY'S SPORTSEVERAL JOCKEYS AND PONIES
REPORTED UNFIT

(By Yarraman.)

ALTHOUGH there is a small entry for the Fourth Extra Race Meeting of the Macao Jockey Club, to be held on the Area Preta track on Sunday, some good sport is promised, the fields in every race being very open, in fact, I should say that it will probably be the most open meeting of the season to date.

A curious mistake occurred in the printing of the entries and handicaps, the typist omitting the name of Racing Spirit, carrying 149 lbs. from the Area Preta Handicap. This has now been rectified, and race-goers should add Racing Spirit to their list of entries.

GEORGE LOTT LOSES

Forest Hills, To-day.—Fred Perry, Wimbledon, American, and Australian champion, continued on the victorious path in his defence of the American National Singles Lawn Tennis title yesterday, defeating Talbot (New York) in straight sets to enter the Fourth Round.

An upset occurred yesterday when E. W. Feibleman, a comparatively unknown New Yorker, defeated George Lott, the U. S. Davis Cup player, after five fiercely contested sets.

J. van Ryn (U.S.) eliminated Britain's only other entrant, F. H. D. Wilde, in straight sets, while other leading American players, including Lester Stiefen, Sidney Wood, Frank Shields, Frank Parker, Clifford Sutter, and Wilbur Allison, emerged victorious.

Results, as cabled by Reuter, were:

F. J. Perry (Britain) beat Talbot (New York) 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.
E. W. Feibleman (New York) beat G. M. Lott (U.S.) 2-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

SCORING ERROR
AT OVALEBELING CORRECTS
BLUNDERMINOR COUNTIES FACING
DEFEAT

London, To-day.

Set 188 to avoid the innings defeat, the Minor Counties had scored 137 for the loss of six wickets against the Australians at the close of play at the Oval yesterday.

The Australians carried their overnight score to 370 for 8 before declaring. L. S. Darling took his not out score to 59 before being dismissed. B. J. Barnett, the deputy stumper, added 80, while W. M. Woodfull, the tourists' skipper, was undefeated with 75.

Batting again, the Minor Counties lost six cheap wickets, the only man to make a stand being Fisher of the Yorkshire Second eleven, who reached the half century before play concluded.

A curious incident occurred in the scoring of the first day's play, the Minor Counties' total of 183 being officially corrected to read 182.

Ebeling, the Australian bowler, was responsible for the correction. He read in the morning papers that a no ball had been incorrectly credited to him. He pointed out the mistake to the scorers, and the mistake was rectified.

Scores, as cabled by Reuter, were:

Minor Counties: 182 (W. E. Harbord 104 not out)

137 for 6 (Fisher 50 not out).

Australia: 370 for 8 (L. S. Darling 59, W. A. Brown 53, B. J. Barnett 80, W. M. Woodfull 75 not out).

AUSTRALIAN TITLE
HOLDERBurke Beats Rowles
On Points

Al Burke, the London-born holder of the Australian middleweight title, accomplished a good performance in winning on points against ex-seaman Harry Rowles, of Battersea and former Colony heavyweight champion, at the end of an exacting 12 rounds contest at the Wandsworth Greyhound Stadium on August 11.

Rowles, who had a good pull in weight, fought with all his usual breeziness of style and relish for a fight.

In Burke, however, he met a wily opponent, who realised the futility of trading punches as Rowles would have desired; and combining fast footwork with penetrating left-hand leads usually ordered the fight along his own lines.

Second's Bloomer

To what extent Rowles was affected by the action of one of his seconds at the end of the fourth, when diluted iodine was accidentally administered instead of the intended refresher, it is impossible to judge.

It would be idle, however, to detract any merit from Burke's win, by virtue of this. Rowles fought with rare determination, and at times gave Burke plenty to keep him busily thinking, despite Burke's efforts to tie-up the free hitting ex-sailor.

Burke, who seemed a little in arrears at the half distance, came along with some rare bursts of fighting in the second half of the journey, and weathering Rowles' tempestuous attacks in excellent manner, began to forge ahead. Rowles was a gallant fighter, and despite a certain weariness in the last two rounds was as ready as ever to mix matters.

THREE BRITISH MARKS
GO ON LAST DAYH. WEBSTER'S MARATHON
SURPRISE

THRILLING BRITISH RELAY WIN

(By BEVIL RUDD)

LONDON, AUG. 8.

THE EMPIRE GAMES ATHLETICS ENDED ON A TRIUMPHANT NOTE AT THE WHITE CITY YESTERDAY. THREE MORE BRITISH RECORDS WERE BROKEN, AND IN THE MILE J. E. LOVELOCK, OF NEW ZEALAND, FAILED BY ONLY 4-5TH SEC TO BEAT HIS OWN FIGURES OF 4MIN 12SEC.

G. L. Rampling, the Army and A. A. A. champion, was the hero of the day and, indeed, of the Games. In winning the quarter-mile in 48sec he beat by 2-5th sec the 26-year-old record set up by L. Halswelle at Glasgow in 1903.

Miss Eileen Hiscok, a London girl, won the women's 220yds in 25sec, and the third record of the afternoon was established by Miss Marjorie Clark, of South Africa, who won the 80 metres hurdles in 11 4-5th sec.

There was a big surprise in the Marathon, in which H. Webster, of Canada, defeated the favourite, D. McNab Robertson, of Scotland, by four and a half minutes.

It was the old Rampling we saw in the quarter-mile yesterday—strong and imperious. He drew the fourth lane and did not bother to race anybody. He concentrated on his own running.

For sheer speed and rhythmic power he was the best sight I have seen on a British track. Nor did he weaken as he swept into the straight with a commanding lead. He broke the tape in unimpaired form.

Suggested Poetry

It Rampling's running suggested poetry—the dynamic energy of William Blake—we had melodious prose from J. E. Lovelock. He controlled the mile from the start. He tapped his resources with unerring discretion, and anticipated and dealt with the strenuous challenges of J. F. Cornes and S. C. Wooderson with perfect serenity.

If only Lovelock had known in the last forty yards, when he had beaten off all opposition, how near he was running to his own British record, how easily could he have beaten it! Or if Cornes could have produced one of his old bursts of speed he would have been driven to break it.

Those fugitive moments in which we watched first Lovelock and then Rampling give of their best shed perpetual benediction on us all. This had all happened before three o'clock yesterday, and yet the rest of the events until the Marathon runners returned soon after five were anything but anti-climax.

We were still to have two more records. Eileen Hiscok raced away from her field the 220 yards. She was in an outside lane, but her amazing speed needed no competitive urge. She ran this distance in 25 seconds.

Miss Clark's Great Win

The women's 80-metre hurdle race yielded not only a new record, but a brilliant race. Over the first five flights Betty Taylor, of Canada, showed incomparable form and celerity and looked a certain winner.

But Marjorie Clark, of South Africa, buoyant after her high jump record on Saturday, and despite a bad start, seemed suddenly to remember all that S.J.M. Atkinson had taught her in Natal about hurdling.

Atkinson is an Olympic champion and holder of the British hurdle record. Marjorie Clark now holds an Empire hurdle title. She decided she was going to win, and she did; nor did her determination upset her style. Many who share with me a distaste for women's athletics were saying after that race: "Well, I'm not so sure."

An unnatural masculinity need not attach to women who excel. Betty Taylor's quiet eyes and gentle voice are an absolute denial of the dogmatic presumption that it does. Miss Taylor's beautiful race was a signal for Canada to get going. At the moment she was hurdling as well as H. Webster, of Canada, was running into an unassailable

GOD-FEARING WOMAN

On the screen Mae West glories
in the fact that "I'm no Angel"
but in private life, it seems, she comes very near to one, according to an authority on angels,
namely, Canon John S. Mitchell, assistant rector of "The Little Church Round the Corner, New York's famous place of worship
for actors and actresses.

"She is a good woman—a charming and generous woman,"
says Canon Mitchell. "She attends church frequently, and off the screen she neither smokes nor drinks. She is a good, hard-working human being, and that is what nearly all the stage and screen stars are. They are the hardest working people in the world. They have to keep fit or they die."

YOUR FAVOURITES

Their Fads And Fancies

Both Robert Montgomery and Fredric March are orderly, tidy people. Wallace Beery is careless about personal belongings. Jeanette MacDonald is meticulously
tidy. Lionel Barrymore is moody,
and John Barrymore is nervously intense.

William Powell doesn't care anything about pretense, while Constance Bennett must have the finest of everything. Norma Shearer is definitely democratic,
and Joan Crawford is fastidious.

LAWTON AS DAVID COPPERFIELD

The young London actor, Frank Lawton, seen recently at the Alhambra, has been selected to play
the title role of the film version of Dickens's "David Copperfield," which goes into production in Hollywood.

"MILLION DOLLAR BABY"

Little Shirley Temple's next
picture will be "Million Dollar Baby." She will have the leading part.

Pat O'Brien is in the detective
role at the Alhambra this weekend.

FRANK BORZAGE who gave us "Seventh Heaven" directs
"Man's Castle" (a Columbia release) with the same praiseworthy care. This play is more sophisticated than the world-
famous movie, but it is possessed, at times, of the same simplicity and charm.

One would hardly think the surroundings would call for romance—a dilapidated shanty-
town of the sort that has sprung
up alarmingly since the depression in the big cities of the United States. It is to a filthy hovel that "Bindle Stiff," (Spencer Tracy) brings "Trina,"
the lovely wistful bedraggled
little heroine played by Loretta Young, to live with him. The reckless vagabond finds himself
torn between his love of tramping
or the girl.

Both the stars seem inspired in their parts. Perhaps it is the fact that they both fell deeply in love during the making of this picture.

AT MAJESTIC

NIGEL BRUCE

So much so, that Spencer Tracy
has left wife and children, and Miss Young, (not yet twenty-one)
has not decided whether he is the man to be No. 2 husband. Amid this poverty and strange people their love for each other grows.

The other characters in the story are perfectly played. The gin-soaked cynical "Flozie," the villain Arthur Hohl, the old benevolent
religious night watchman "Tra," (grandly played by Walter Connelly now a star in Columbia)
and the jealous actress (Glenda Farrell) are noteworthy in the cast.

Frank Borzage makes the most of every situation, and gives the utmost intimacy and realism to his characters. He is, undoubtedly, the real star of the piece (Queen's).

Director's Wager

Lovers of murder mystery stories and pictures are going to get a run for their money in "Murder on Trinidad" coming to the Majestic Theatre to-day. Director
Louis King is willing to wager
that anyone who has not read or heard the story will be unable positively to point out the mur-derer until the final scenes.

Nearly every one in the cast,
with the exception of Nigel Bruce, who plays the role of the detective, and Heather Angel, has portrayed dozens of villainous
parts on the screen.

Adolphe Menjou has to look to his laurels when starring in "Little Miss Marker" with Shirley Temple. The popular pair will be at the King's on Sunday.

SHORT SHOTS

DOROTHEA WIECKE, now appearing at the King's, is the Baroness von Der Decken, and her husband is one of the biggest publishers in Germany.

Glenda Farrell was married at sixteen, and has a 10-year-old son.

Claudette Colbert and her husband,
Norman Foster, after nine years, still maintain separate establishments, but they remain happily married.

Clark Gable married twice, has a step-son only two years younger than he is.

The marriage of Ralph Graves to a stage actress surprised all his friends.

Lila Lee after a two years' battle has been given the custody of her son.
His father James Kirkwood has again
been divorced by his third wife.

Anne Sothorn and Lupe Velez are in the Columbia musical "Girl Friend." Ida Lupino and Harold Rosson (ex-husband of Jean Harlow) have now
quite recovered from the infantile paralysis that laid them low. The ace camera-man is going over to England

to photograph "The Scarlet Pimpernel"
in which Leslie Howard is the star.

George Brent and Myrna Loy are
"thru" about each other, but for
how long no one can guess.

Inn Hunter, (seen here in "Man
from Toronto") is another on the way to winning Hollywood success.

Noel Coward will most likely act for a Warner film shortly.

Charles Boyer following his quarrel
with Fox will return to Europe.

Two men trying for a come-back
with Columbia, John Gilbert and Harry Richman, and it is a good thing to know that Edward Arnold is at last coming in to his own, and is scheduled for stardom.

Utility Companies

Mr. L. C. F. Bellamy's address at the Rotary Club tiffin was full of information and interest; but it may be doubted whether most of the general public are quick to take up the wider implications of the story which he unfolded. Political controversies are so entangled with economics that it is doubtful whether today it would be possible to get a nation to fight for any issue that was merely political; in fact our young people read history with amazement that anybody should have worried over some of the questions that led to the older wars; and are inclined to despise the mentality of statesmen who sacrificed wealth and lives for dynastic rivalries or theological subtleties. The truth of course is that at the time those disputes seemed immensely more important than any question of trade or finance or currency. And it is quite possible that a future generation will be equally astounded at some of our contemporary troubles. The currency question for instance can only be settled by international co-operation, no matter what Der Fuehrer may say; and it is a proof of our folly that the various Treasuries and Central Banks will not even confide in each other to the extent of telling their colleagues what they are going to do.

The motive power behind the various revolutions that we read about is simply hunger. With anything from five to twenty per cent of the able-bodied population out of work in the industrial countries; it would be a miracle if there were no disturbances. It would be a sign that men had ceased to be men; for the disinherited are always justified in demanding that the community shall make such arrangements as shall bring them into the circle of producers and consumers. Hence these high-flown novelties of theory that have only the result of creating an impression among the ignorant that they are being deprived of their own by the deliberate machinations of designing and cruel employers. These new theories all have one defect: They proceed on the assumption that any organisation of industrial production must be uniform, and must be universally applied as quickly as possible; and if necessary even by violence and revolution. They ignore the variety of methods that we can see actually at work with good results; and they ignore also the variety of human temperament that we find between men of diverse trades and professions; between town and country; between one nation and another.

It happens in this matter of economic organisation that England is once again, as so often before, the despair of the theorists. The freedom of organisations which was won a century ago by the early Trades Unions in England, of whom "The Tolpuddle Martyrs" who are being celebrated this year may be taken as typical; together with the possibly even excessive freedom of combination under the limited liability system; has led to the inauguration in one place or another of almost every type of industry that the most ingenious person could imagine. There is nothing to prevent any new experiment; but probably the immediate future will be a process rather of the extended application of systems that have already been proved successful on a small scale.

The attempt to do without money has proved so intolerably cumbersome that even the Soviets have been compelled, while using an arbitrary paper currency at home, to create and manage carefully on orthodox principles a currency for foreign trade. The problem may then be best stated as that of how to get all the necessary jobs done without either under-rewarding or over-rewarding those employed, according to their worth. This is the actual result of far more private businesses than the extreme theorists are willing to admit. There is a cloud of suspicion which is based on nothing more than secrecy of accounts and failure to understand the accounts published. There is also a great deal of needless suspicion aroused by the fact that companies are nominally free to charge what they like; though competition and the refusal of the public to pay anything excessive are very effective checks. The publication of audited accounts, and the general supervision of the London Passenger Transport Board moves these causes of suspicion; for clearly no such Utility Company could make an excessive profit or provide an inadequate service without being sharply pulled up by public and effective criticism.

It is a mistake to use such vague and controversial words as Socialism, Communism, and Fascism when, all we mean by theories all have one defect: They proceed on the assumption that any organisation of industrial production must be uniform, and must be universally applied as quickly as possible; and if necessary even by violence and revolution. They ignore the variety of methods that we can see actually at work with good results; and they ignore also the variety of human temperament that we

SUCCURED THE SERBS

Signal honour is to be paid to a Scottish woman surgeon this month, when Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, who has given a personal contribution of £500, will open the new Anglo-Yugoslav Children's Hospital at Sremska Kamenica on the Danube.

The director and creator of the hospital is Dr. Katharine Macphail, a former surgeon of the Scottish Women's Hospital at Kragujevatch in Serbia.

After the war Dr. Macphail, appalled by the number of orphan children whose parents had disappeared during the great Serbian retreat, started her hospital in an abandoned barracks with £25 and a bottle of aspirin.

The part played during the war by the British woman surgeons and nurses, several of whom, including Dr. Ruth Plimsoll, daughter of Samuel Plimsoll, M.P. of local fame, won the Serbian V.C., has never been forgotten by the Serbs.

WHITEWASHING HISTORY

Like many newspapers in other countries the Nazi "Volkischer Beobachter" is running a daily commentary on the war under the heading of "Twenty Years Ago." Here are two extracts from a recent issue:

France was then asked what her attitude would be in the case of a Russo-German war. Her reply that France would act as her own interests dictated was given under the influence of the firm assurance of military aid from England.

England, too, had mobilised her navy and her army. The negotiations entered into by the Reich regarding the question of Belgian neutrality were conducted in such a way by the English statesmen as to prepare the diplomatic ground for England's entry into the war.

These samples are typical of the history textbooks now used in German schools.

Your Daily Smile!

"My father and I know everything in the world," said a small boy in his companion. "All right," said the latter. "Where's Kamschatka?" It was a stiff question, but the little fellow answered coolly, "That's one of the questions my father knows."

Thoroughness
"They're verra thorough in London," said Mac. "I lost a shillin' in the Strand an' reported it to the police. Next mornin' I went to search again and they'd got the road up."

TOO MANY OLD MEN IN THE ARMY THOROUGH CLEAN-OUT ESSENTIAL

270-YEAR-OLD PROBLEM

London. It is always a gloomy sign when the question of Army promotion enters the public field (as it is now doing), because it has remained unanswered ever since 1660, when our present standing Army was first established. And, since then, practically every attempt to answer it has been little more than a face-salve to obscure a hectic disease. I do not say that this is so in the present case, but it has been so in the past and it may well be so again.

For instance, after the war of the Spanish Succession (1701-1714) it cropped up and the Army at once fell into a state of decay. In a pamphlet entitled "Mars Stript of His Armour," published about 1715, is to be found a picture of a diminutive ensign (second-lieutenant) in leading strings, held by an old soldier, tottering round his veterans. Its title is: "The Military Nurse, or Modern Officer," and under it we read:

By Dear Mama's Petition
And Good Papa's Purse—
Jacky gets a Commission,
And likewise a Nurse.

In the 1790's we find infants obtaining commissions in the cradle and drawing pay for sixteen years before joining their corps. On one occasion, a gentleman visiting a Scottish house heard a loud noise proceeding from the nursery. The maid apologised by saying: "Oh, it's only the Major roaring for his parritch!"

From this it might seem that youth in our commanders was not lacking. True in one way it was quite untrue in another. For instance, in 1826 there was an ensign on full pay aged 61, and in 1852 there were thirteen generals of 70 years and upwards and thirty-seven of 60 to 70—quite youthful officers when compared to the admirals, for in 1831 there was one of over 90 and seven between 80 and 90, all on the admirals' list.

Then in 1871 purchase was abolished and everything was to be perfect; yet the Boer War showed that all was far from well with our system of promotion, and now we have the Stanhope Committee.

Begin At The Head

Why has the disease persisted for over 270 years? There are several answers to this question among which one is obvious: If a stream gets blocked and overflows its banks and creates stagnant pools along them, should you object to these pools then it is better to remove the obstruction than to baste them out. Begin at its head and not at its tail or in its middle. When promotion in the Army is blocked, the problem is identical.

Yet what are the present decisions? To abolish a few "Ghosts"—officers who have retired but whose places cannot be filled because they have not reached the age limit—and to back some 150 or more majors and captains out of the middle and offer them a paltry £60 a year increase in pensions, just at a time when their families are growing up and money is most needed.

There are other restrictions, yet all affect the middle, and so far not a word has been published as regards the obstruction itself—the old and often antiquated generals at the top.

The reason is, that in the end, directly or indirectly, the top decides, and is, if human nature is to expect that it will decapitate itself? Age must, therefore, judge of worth and in the most vicious circumstances; because the judge is an impersonal entity—a Board of generals—and not a Commander-in-Chief, and "Boards," says Bentham, "are screens; what the Board does is the act of nobody, and nobody can be made to answer for it." From some of the recent promotions to major and lieutenant-generals it would appear that Bentham is right.

The Finance Bogey

There is also another reason quite as potent—namely, Finance, which has nothing whatever to do with efficiency. It was Finance which supported the old system of purchase, which evoked the "Ghost," and which supports the iniquitous half-pay system, one of the main causes of the present blockage. This ridiculous rudiment of the long-abolished purchase of commissions is therefore worth a moment's inquiry.

At present certain officers, mainly colonels and upwards, if they are out of an appointment and do not wish to resign, are placed for a period not exceeding three years on the half-pay list. This pays Finance hand over fist, because whilst on it they receive about one-third of their full pay and allowances. Here they kick their heels about waiting for a job, and, in consequence, block promotion. To get rid of this dead-weight of elderly soldiery I maintain that all senior officers out of an appointment should be kept on the full-pay list for six months, and then, if not absorbed, that they should be compelled to resign. But Finance stands in the way, for this will cost money in pensions.

There is a deeper reason still if efficiency is to become the goal of promotion. To-day promotion is by seniority tempered by merit. And what is merit? In war time merit means military ability, but in peace time it is largely restricted to a social value, even to a sporting value.

Cardwell System Condemned

If we insist upon maintaining an obsolete army based on obsolete principles, slaughter the majors as you will, we shall never produce a really capable corps of officers. For example, the Cardwell system, though good in the seventies of the last century, to-day prohibits training for modern war in all line battalions at home; for by it they are reduced to nothing more than recruit depots, military nurseries, in which the yearly training is soul destroyed. It must go.

In brief, what I suggest is, that the promotion problem is insoluble unless we make up our minds to have a thorough house-cleaning.

First of all we want a policy: What is the Army for and how can we get what we want? If there is to be any cutting down of officers, let us start at the top. "Old commanders invite disasters," once wrote Lord Telford, and "An ignorant general," said Charles Napier, "is a murderer." Well, then, out with these folk. Half-pay should go, as it collects little more than military driftwood, and the Army Council should be replaced by a Commander-in-Chief, because the Army has become more and more machine-controlled since it came into existence.

Finally, Finance, that octopus of military inefficiency which has its tentacles in every camp, every barrack-room, every fire-grate, should be brought under the General Staff as its servant and cease to be its master. These are the cures of the promotion disease, and as you will see, they go somewhat beyond banishing military spoons and gelding the careers of a number of unfortunate majors.

TOO MUCH INTOXICATING LIQUOR THAT DAY PLEADS PRISONER

To-day's Short Story.

FIRST LOVE

By Charlotte Haldane

IT was my mother who told me this story of my great-aunt Sophie.

Let me admit at once that she didn't tell it to me as I am about to relate it to you. My mother doesn't write stories; she tells them. In the midst of an ordinary conversation she will produce a phrase, an anecdote, pregnant with drama. But it is no use asking for more: the facts are crude, unvarnished, as truth mostly is. There is nothing for me to do but to deal with them, as best I can, or else, I have found by experience, my mother's stories are apt to leave me no peace. Truth haunts the mind, and must be exercised.

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "The Strange Case of Mr. Todmorden," by F. Britten Austin.

It was in the midst of a casual conversation on gambling that my mother referred to my great-aunt Sophie.

"Your great-aunt Sophie always disapproved of gambling," she said, and laughed. The edge of sarcasm was taken off her laughter by a quality of tenderness, of understanding. Here is the story, at least more or less as my mother told it me.

My great-aunt was not rich; she was well-to-do. That is to say that she could afford to have pretty well everything she wanted, but her tastes were middle-class.

She had a large and heavy house, full of large and heavy furniture, and solid silver. Her dresses and her jewels were like that, too. She had a brougham and an elderly coachman and several maids, and a permanent box at the Opera. Every winter she went to Monte Carlo for the climate.

35 WOUNDED IN NORTH Raleigh, N. Carolina, To-day.

The Governor of North Carolina, Mr. J. C. B. Ehringhaus, has directed the military to call out such units as are necessary to preserve order. Violence is spreading and, thus far, 35 persons have been wounded.

MEDIATION BOARD MEETING Concord, To-day.

The Chairman of the Textile Mediation Board, Governor John G. Winant, of New Hampshire, has announced that the Board will hold its first meeting at Washington, to-day.

A New York message states that Wall Street is pleased with President Roosevelt's appointment of the textile mediators, although the strike is comparatively unimportant to the market.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

50,000 Ladies' Garment Workers May Walk Out

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Reprinted September 7, 1934 a.m.)

New York, To-day.

The International Ladies' garment Workers Union has voted to call out 50,000 workers in the cotton garment industry on October 1, unless the employers reduce working hours from 40 to 36 weekly and increase wages by 10 per cent.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

ALUMINIUM SETTLEMENT

Pittsburg, To-day.

The mediators have announced that the strike in the United States aluminium industry has been settled and that workers are returning to-day. The terms of the settlement have not been disclosed.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

My great-aunt Sophie, like all middle-aged, middle-class women, was a snob. And although the climate at Monte Carlo was the only slice of Riviera climate which, according to her, suited her health exactly, this was rather more strictly due to the social than to the physical atmosphere.

Monte Carlo, in my great-aunt Sophie's day, was full of celebrities: of Russian grand-dukes and of "actresses" of international fame, and of famous "entrepreneurs," who were not undertakers, but whose professional activities on Stock Exchange undoubtedly created a boom, from the time to time, in the best mahogany coffins, ornamented with solid silver handles.

"Everybody" who was "anybody" went to Monte Carlo. But really, people like my great-aunt Sophie were the backbone of the place. They paid heavily to bask in its social sunshine, whilst the celebrities stowed in "the rooms." They knew "everybody"—by sight—and were too busy counting crowned heads to remember that it was the climate which did their rheumatism so much good.

My great-aunt always stayed in the best hotel, by which I mean, of course, the most expensive. It was full of Russians. Everyone adored the Russians. They were all the titled and mad and charming.

You merely had to watch them drinking champagne, and the women smoking little cigarettes with long cardboard holders, to feel your vitality instantly enhanced. When watching the Russians talking, gesticulating, smoking, drinking champagne, flirting, you didn't have to be told that this was life. The fact was self-evident.

My aunt, an old habituee of the place, felt perfectly at home there. She bore herself very aristocratically, and had a well-deserved reputation for exclusiveness. She was terribly fussy about her food, and did not like to be told that this was life. The fact was self-evident.

So matters had gone on during the nineteen years of her widowhood. Each winter, since the death of her husband, my aunt had passed six weeks at Monte Carlo.

It was during her twentieth year, when she would have been a little less than sixty years of age, that she made the acquaintance of the Princess Maximoff. I hope it is unnecessary to indicate at this stage that my great-aunt did not seek out the Princess, nor force her friendship upon her. Quite the contrary. The Princess, genuine aristocrat that she was, availed herself of the privilege of her station to thrust her friendship upon my great-aunt. Aunt Sophie, of course, did not demur, did not draw back snobbishly nor timorously from the honour done her; she accepted it with the perfect naturalness, free from timidity or over-anxiety, of the middle-class woman of breeding.

The only outward difference it appeared to make was that her professional companion spent many pleasant hours in her room, embroidering my great-aunt's lingerie. Aunt Sophie was particularly about her lingerie.

The two ladies, however, the Great Lady and my great-aunt, spent many afternoons driving in my great-aunt's hired carriage. The Princess did not appear in public before four o'clock in the afternoon; she found the mid-day sun too dazzling for her delicate complexion. It was one of the most endearing characteristics of the charmingly eccentric Russians that they "never" got up and never went to bed.

I DON'T KNOW WHAT HAPPENED

CASE TO ANSWER STATES CHIEF JUSTICE

ADJOURNMENT REFUSED

SUBMITTING that there was no evidence to connect the accused, Ng Lot-yuen, with the death of Michael Pine and that only one witness in the case for the Crown had seen any of the five children thrown into the nullah, neither of whom were Michael Pine. Mr. R. C. H. Lim, Counsel for the Defence in the nullah murder re-trial, submitted before the Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. MacGregor, at the Supreme Court this morning that there was no case to go to the Jury.

Despite the absence of the evidence of little Miss Mary Pine, one of the principal witnesses for the Crown, who was taken ill with measles yesterday, the Chief Justice ruled that the accused had a case to answer.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney-General, who conducted the case for the Crown, applied for a fortnight's adjournment to enable Mary Pine's evidence to be taken. His application, however, was over-ruled by the Chief Justice.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney-General, conducted the case for the Crown, and Mr. R. C. H. Lim, instructed by Mr. P. T. K. Kemble, of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist, was for the defence.

The special jury comprised Messrs. W. H. E. Thomas (foreman), E. Cock, Wong Tak-kwong, W. G. Goggin, Sum Pak-ming, F. M. Ellis and J. Fleming.

At the conclusion of the evidence by the witness for the Crown, Mr. Fraser asked if it might be possible to adjourn the case for a fortnight. Miss Mary Pine was in hospital suffering from measles and was not likely to be ready to come to Court for at least 14 days, he said.

His Lordship said that the Jury, who had other matters to attend to, could not be expected to carry the details of the case for that period, and, under the circumstances he did not propose to grant a further adjournment.

With the close of the case for the Crown, the Jury retired while Mr. Lim made his submission that there was no case to go to the Jury.

While admitting that a great number of witnesses and much evidence had been given in the case for the Crown, Mr. Lim said that there was no evidence which could connect the accused with Michael Pine. It was Michael Pine, and he alone, that the accused was concerned with in the charge of murder.

Apart from the evidence of Mary Pine, the twin sister of deceased, the only evidence before the Court was that given by Mrs. Fairburn. Assuming that it is correct, then the case for the Crown rests entirely on one witness only, said Mr. Lim.

"No Connection"

Mrs. Fairburn had seen two children thrown into the nullah by the accused and whom she later said could be no other than Tony Flood and Fay Bromley because she found them exactly in the same position where they had fallen, said Mr. Lim. That was the only evidence that the accused had thrown two children into the nullah and neither of the two were Michael Pine, said Mr. Lim, adding that there was no connection between Michael and the accused.

Taking the evidence of the other witnesses, which was of less importance, the discovery of the accused in the tunnel was explained by his desire to commit suicide, said counsel.

The evidence of Dr. Valentine of the Government Civil Hospital was referred to in which the latter said that the cold water would have had the effect of sobering him up, added Mr. Lim.

"Amazing Coincidences"

His Lordship interjected and asked if it was Mr. Lim's suggestion that three amazing coincidences occurred on that morning. That two children were thrown into the nullah; that the accused jumped in himself; and that the three other children fell in?

Mr. Lim replied that it was not known how the other children had got into the nullah. They might have fallen in higher up for all that was known, he said.

His Lordship referred to the evidence of Master Eric Davis who said that he left all five children on the bridge together, and had only gone a little way home when he heard a scream. Further, the medical evidence showed that the injuries on Michael Pine's head were caused by a fall from a height.

threw five, said Mr. Fraser. All this was very cogent evidence, he said, and commended it to the jury for close consideration.

"A Mad Thing To Do"

"The accused's action was a mad thing to do," said Mr. Fraser, who added that he relieved the Jury of the responsibility of asking them to decide whether the accused was sane or not. Except for the evidence that he was slightly intoxicated, the medical evidence declared that he was quite sane.

"You are not called upon to decide whether mental instability played any part in his case whatsoever, in fact the Crown has said that it must have been a person of low mentality to have done such a crime," said Mr. Fraser. "Any man of a higher order of mentality would not dream of such a thing."

Such evidence as Mrs. Fairburn's which had stood the test of cross-examination must therefore be accepted in the full, said Mr. Fraser. The hearing was then adjourned for five.

Opera Co., a band of 20 Chinese players, headed by the famous
girl star, the lovely Evelyn Chen.
Up in the Northern cities she is a Queen, and shares in popularity
with the world-famous Mei Lang Fang.

She is the highest paid singer on gramophone records, immensely popular on the screen, and holds her own
with the best dancers in the modern Western style and tempo.

This part of her work is to be seen at the Hong Kong Hotel, but at the theatre she will act and sing. The costumes and paraphernalia needed for the plays are said to be magnificent.
There will be but two shows a day, lasting two hours, and as the season is, unfortunately only a short one you are advised to be sure and see them. This is something about which to write home, and such a talented Company does not often come to a foreign theatre. (Queen's).

"Little Miss Marker" Damon Runyon, who wrote the highly successful "Lady for a Day" turns in another, pretty little film fairy story in "Little Miss Marker" (titled "Girl in Paw" in England). In gambling language "Marker" means an
I.O.U.

Shirley Temple, Fox's wonder child (lent for this film to Paramount) is left by her father to a hardboiled Broadway bookmaker (Adolphe Menjou) as security for a bet. The horse in question loses, and the father ends his life. The story then continues along familiar lines, with the baby captiving all hearts, (same as she does off the screen).

This five-year-old girl is the biggest child sensation the screen has discovered, and it is no matter in what film
she now appears she literally steals it,
even from old-timers like Menjou and Charles Bickford.

The picture is also notable for the presence of the lovely Dorothy Dell, who was killed recently at the age of nineteen in a motor accident. She reveals something of the promise of the fame that would undoubtedly have been hers, as she did in "Wharf Angel" and her last picture "Shoot the Works." You have a treat in store when you see
this delightful adorable baby star.
Shirley. Incidentally, she has been on "Strike." Fox paid her the poultry salary of $150 a week, and as she has been the biggest "drawing card" of the year, Father and Mother refused to allow the child to continue.

Now it is settled at $1,000 a week,
and $500 for the mother who teaches Shirley all her parts.

You would be unwise if you miss seeing this picture—it has Shirley and Dorothy, and I guarantee you an enjoyable evening. (King's).

"King Of The Wild Horses"

"King of the Wild Horses" tells a gripping story of "Rex" the wild horse. He is captured by a Navajo Indian, falls a plan in which hundreds of horses are to be stolen.
The fight between a horse and lion
is thrilling. "Rex" is dynamic and uncanny and other principal roles
are enacted by "Lady" and "Marquis." Among the human support
we find Dorothy Appleby, William Jenny and Wallace MacDonald.
Grand evening for adults and children. (Alhambra).

Wonder Bar

One of the outstanding pictures
of the year "Wonder Bar" is scheduled for the middle of the month at the Alhambra. From what I read all the superlatives
have been used up trying to describe this great picture. The cast comprises such names as Al Jolson,
Dolores del Rio, Richard Cortez, Kay Francis and dozens more. The music is of the catchiest, and the ensemble numbers and chorus work spell Great Entertainment. More later. (Alhambra).

"The Bureau Of Missing Persons"

The activities of a little-known branch of the American Police Force, forms the background for the story "The Bureau of Missing Persons." The man who wrote it, Captain Ayres, has been for fifteen years, Chief of the New York Bureau, and he tells us
several hitherto unpublished stories
dealing with his department.

The romance of a detective and a girl suspected of murder is ingenious
and contains several unexpected twists.
Lewis Stone is dignified as the Captain, Pat O'Brien splendid as the tough detective, while Allen Jonkins is highly amusing. Glenda Farrell brings a clever little study,
and Bette Davis shows to the greatest advantage as the heroine. This actress is certainly "going places."

and I hear that in her latest film,
with Leslie Howard, "Of Human Bondage," she gives a performance that will be remembered. The film supplies a wealth of emotion and action,
and is full of emotion and action.
Don't miss it. (Alhambra).

"Little Man What Now?"

Up to the time of writing this,
the King's management were not sure which picture would follow
"Little Miss Marker," but it may be "Little Man What Now?" or "It Happened One Night." Those of us who admired Margaret Sullivan
in "Only Yesterday" will be glad to hear that her second film gives her
even greater chances than her first.
She triumphs in this poignant honest story, which I hear has more of the quality and feeling of "Seventh Heaven" than any other picture, and of course the same wizard director, Frank Borzage.

It concerns a young couple, their trials, tribulation, defeat, and aspirations during the post-war upheaval in Germany. It is not a story really, but a simple chronicle
of everyday happenings. It is heartbreaking drama, but so intelligently acted by the two stars—
Miss Sullivan and Douglas Montgomery (last seen here in "Little Women") that, although it may
sadden, it cannot help but elevate.
A sure-fire winner and you would be unwise to miss seeing this.

"It Happened One Night"

"It Happened One Night" is rich with humour, delightfully acted by two of the most popular stars,
Clark Gable (lent by M.G.M.) and Claudette Colbert (from Paramount). This Columbia release has the skilful direction of Frank Capra, and he makes it human and natural.

There is a similarity in the story
between "Taming of the Shrew"
and "Platinum Blonde" (memories
of Jean Harlow and Robert Williams) and is aided by a grand cast
including Walter Connolly, Roscoe Karns, and Jameson Thomas. It is a comedy that gives wonderful opportunities, and ensures an evening of rollicking enjoyment. More of these two later, but they are both pictures I can thoroughly recommend. (Due at the King's).

"The Worst Woman In Paris"

"The Worst Woman in Paris" is a novelistic story with a mixture of sentiment and sophistication,
starring Benita Hume, Adolphe Menjou and Harvey Stephens (seen here in "Jimmy and Sally").
Monta Bell the director wrote it,
and it tells of the love and sacrifice
of a notorious woman. (Coming to Alhambra).

"Let's Fall In Love"

"Let's Fall In Love" is a delightful musical with Anne Southern and Edmund Lowe, which tells of the rise to fame of an unknown
girl, and her love for the Director who makes her. This will be followed by a charming story of the South with Janet Gaynor at her sweetest, Lionel Barrymore a superb character part and Robert Young, the handsome hero. Strongly advised. (Coming to Star).

"Man Of Two Worlds"

"Murder in Trinidad" gives us
Heather Angel, Nigel Bruce, Victor
Jory and others. It is very well directed, and holds one's interest.
This will be followed by the idol of two continents in his first Hollywood film—Francis Lederer in
"Man of Two Worlds" with Ells-Landi. Certainly an uncommon
story, and a copy of a greater film
"Esquimaux." Worth seeing once.
The theatre is sure to be packed with the admirers of Wheeler and Wooley in "Hips Hips Hooray," an absurdity with lots of laughs.
(Coming to the Majestic).

"Ladies Of The Jury"

I remember thoroughly enjoying
"Ladies of the Jury," but then one of my favourite comedienne is the star. Edna May Oliver stands alone. Really amusing situations are enacted in which a locked-up jury find themselves. This will be followed by "Gold-Diggers of 1933,"
a grand musical with wonderful ensemble numbers and a splendid cast. The picture which follows is not so good. I can assure you neither Joan Bennett nor Charles Farrell exactly shine in "Wild Girl." Due at the Oriental.

Coming Fox Attractions

The Fox Studio promise a line-up of films and players that will be hard to beat. They appear to be more or less the headquarters of the British film stars too—
Madeline Carroll, Hugh Williams,
Herbert Mundin, Pat Patterson
(who will do the most sought-

She had always respected her husband and he had respected her.
Her children had sometimes amused
and sometimes annoyed her. Two of them were dead, one still lived.
Her grandchildren always amused
and never annoyed her.

So that although the story of the Princess Natasha, the Little White Bride, had struck her as pathetically romantic, it had made about as much impression on her
as Debussy's "Pelleas and Melisande" had made on her when she had attended its first performance.
You may, of course, totally reject my explanation of my greataunt's existence. You may justifi-ably retort to the over-imaginative story teller, "How do you know?" I don't of course. I have no right to claim to set up as an authority on my great-aunt Sophie.
But how else explain . . . ?

As my great-aunt's companion
was helping her to dress for dinner that night, her employer gave instructions:—
"I am going out with the Princess this evening. Yes, the emeralds. You need not wait up for me. Be careful how you fasten the necklace."

The grateful companion, hugging
a tearstained volume of "Under Two Flags," retired early to a cosy bed.

When the ladies entered the rooms, the Princess appeared by far the most agitated of the two.
She fluttered about with little delighted tremors of excitement,
reiterating over and over again,
each time she introduced my great-aunt Sophie to one of her compatriots:

"It is her first attempt on the tables! She has never played before! She has been here regularly, every year for twenty years, and she has never played before! Have you ever heard of anything so divinely original?"

When, however, they had secured
seats at a table, the Princess's manner changed. She became serious, concentrated, almost devotional. Her example impressed my great-aunt. The Princess showed her how to play roulette—
even for so inexperienced a gambler as my great-aunt that was not very difficult—but refused to give assistance or advice. Like all Russians, the Princess Maximoff was superstitious. My great-aunt Sophie was left alone, so to speak, face to face with her Fate. The Princess was a mere witness.

When my great-aunt staked her first hundred francs, she recalled
the phrase, "To have a little flutter." Her heart was fluttering,
she noticed. It seemed to warn
her, with jumpy, rather loud beats,
after part originated by Gertrude Lawrence in "Nymph Errand") and Mona Barrie, to mention a few.

Then, they claim, and rightly so,
to have the biggest box-office winners of the day on their pay roll.
Baby Shirley Temple, the newest sensation, Janet Gaynor, who still holds her own as Queen against all-comers, Will Rogers, Harold Lloyd, Spencer Tracy, Warner
Baxter, Jimmy Dunn, Edmund
Lowe and Victor M. Laglen are on their books. I could go on indefinitely, but space forbids.

Anyhow when you see the name of Fox—you know you are in for something with real entertainment
value, and we are extra lucky here,
as they have not the exclusive right
of just one theatre, but each theatre vies with the other to pick the winners.

LEDERER PERFECT MAN OF STAGE

Francis Lederer, the new candidate for stellar motion picture honours, is rated as the physically perfect man of the stage,
where he won international renown for artistry and emotional appeal. He is an adept boxer, wrestler, dancer, and all-round athlete. At Hollywood, where he has just been co-starred with Elissa Landi in "Man of Two

a private gymnasium to keep himself in the prime of condition.

that something was going to happen.

What happened was that she won quite a little heap of money. She did not know how much.

"Don't count it!" cried the Princess. "It is unlucky."

My great-aunt obeyed, somewhat dazedly.

She did not clearly understand
what had occurred.

Never in her life before had she seen or handled money that had not come out of a bank, in return for a cheque. It had meant no more to her than a yard of silk
which came in return for a sum of money over the draper's counter.
It was not a thing-in-itself; it was what her husband might have called currency, something to be used
for some definite purpose, or purposes.

But this which had now come to her was different. It was something-in-itself. It had come of its own accord, to her, for no reason
which she could explain, mysteriously.

Without knowing clearly what she did, she continued to put some of it back. Each time more returned. As each time more returned the pleasure she was experiencing,
the astonishment, the new, indescribable sensation, increased. She could not realise clearly what was happening. She only felt that she was being taken complete possession of by something she had never before, in her whole life, known:
an emotion violent, profound,
which grew as it fed.

The gold in front of her piled up
and up.

The Princess, beside herself with excitement, had given up playing.
She beckoned to all her friends to come and watch the phenomenon.
By and by other players became also merely spectators. The word went round that the bank was being broken.

"Beginner's luck," the Princess called it, but my great-aunt Sophie hardly heard her.

A repressive dam inside her had burst. Emotion flooded through, an indescribable emotion. It was a dream with exactly the same quality of rising excitement as that which generally accompanies a nightmare.

But, whereas in a nightmare the excitement is displeasurable, this excitement, almost unbearable
though it was, was a delirium of
joy. As the piles of gold before my great-aunt grew, so her passion grew. She surrendered to it with all she had to give. Unfortunately for her, she had too much. Had she only lived, had she only loved,
once before, had she suffered joy
or sorrow or even anguish anticipation; had she not spent her previous fifty-nine years storing up emotion until this moment came to open the flood-gates, all would have been well.

At least I think that in that case
my great-aunt Sophie would not have died of heart-failure the first and last time she broke the bank
at Monte Carlo.

THE END.

"Attempting To Delude Public"

EX-MINISTER'S BROADCAST

New York, To-day. Mr. Arthur Balantine, Under-Secretary of the Department of Treasury in the Hoover Cabinet, in a broadcast, yesterday, charged the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, with attempting to delude the public regarding Government finances.

He attacked Mr. Morgenthau's reference to the gold profits and said "they cannot be characterised as profits. It is seizure."

Mr. Arthur Balantine further said that the gold operations under President Roosevelt's regime "have not lessened the cost of the New Deal. On the other hand, it has been increased beyond reckoning."—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

TRADING INCREASE NOT EXPECTED

But Sentiment Better On Wall Street

New York, To-day. The sentiment on Wall Street has slightly improved, without expecting any increase in trading. Favourable factors were that the New York Telephone Company made a station loss of 4,868 during August, as against a 7,009 loss in August last year, and a 30,578 loss in August 1932.

Unfavourable factors were the weakness of United States Government bonds, reflected in the unsteadiness of Bank Stocks.—United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.
